stonehenge

Stonehenge is situated in the South West of England in Salisbury. It is an ancient stone circle that was built between 3000 and 2000 BC. Nobody really knows who built it or why. Some people think it was to worship the sun or the moon. There are many burial mounds around it. The stones are huge, weighing 4 and 5 tonnes. They are called bluestones and they come from Wales, more than 200 miles away! Archaeologists think that the builders placed the stones on rafts and sailed around the coast to bring them to Salisbury.

Match up the word and its meaning/description. Then, complete the grid.

True or false?

- Stonehenge is a modern monument.
- It was built about 2000 years ago.
- The stones are marble from Italy.
- They placed the stones on rafts.
- Stonehenge is an ancient stone circle.
- It was a place of burial and you can still see the mounds (small hills).

Summer solstice sunrise

Archaeologists think that the ancient builders had some knowledge about astronomy. On June 21st (the summer solstice, which is the longest day), the sun rises directly above the heel stone and then enters the circle through an arch and goes directly through the central trilithon. Because of this, many thousands of people go to Stonehenge on June 21st to observe this phenomenon. It is a pity, but very often, the weather is too cloudy and you can't see it.

Choose the right word in the brackets.

As soon as some people (hear/listen) the word, Stonehenge, they think of Druids. For many years, Druids held their religious (ceremonies/parties) at Stonehenge. They are mysterious people who (wear/were) white cloaks. We don't know much about their past, or their present because they (didn't/did) write things down. We know they had a (lot/much) of knowledge because famous people wrote it, like Julius Caesar. Do you think it would be better if the Druids had written things down – for example what they did at Stonehenge?
